

Self-Isolation

Sirens all day, every day.
And steady rain
out the window. I won't go out there. I'll sit
in this gray room
with twin computer
lights. Some days
it's either fog
or an ominous cloud.
Today it is both.

*James Croal Jackson is a Filipino-American poet. He has a chapbook, The Frayed Edge of Memory (Writing Knights Press, 2017), and recent poems in DASH, Sampsonia Way, and Jam & Sand. He edits The Mantle (themantlepoetry.com). He works in film production in Pittsburgh, PA.*

~ *♦*❁*♦* ~

The Pangolin Review, Issue 16 (May 2020)